OUR ASSOCIATION AFTER FIFTY YEARS

THERE IS A PICTURE which will linger in the minds of all of us who have been members of the Presbyterian Sunday School Superintendents' Association of Philadelphia and Vicinity. . . . It is a composite picture, not of any two or three occasions, but made up of the memories of occasions that have, for many of us, extended over the years from youth to middle life and beyond.

The scene is in any one of a hundred or more Philadelphia or neighboring Presbyterian Churches early in the third Monday evening of the month. The church is quite empty when you first step within its doors, coming as you do straight from your business office. But gradually, as six o'clock, and half past six approach, other men come in, and presently you realize that a considerable company has gathered, and little groups scattered all through the church are engaged in greetings and introductions.

After a word of welcome from the superintendent of the Sunday school, and from the pastor of the church, you join the cheery, busily chatting crowd, and proceed to that part of the church where a splendid evening meal has been spread by the kindly ladies of the church. . . . Presently there is silence, some one is called upon to give thanks to our Heavenly Father for his goodness to us, and the supper proceeds with delightful fellowship around the tables.

When the meal is finished, and the business of the Association is transacted, perhaps a speaker is heard at the table, before you adjourn to the auditorium of the church for the evening meeting at eight o'clock.

That evening meeting opens with a devotional period, and then one or two addresses follow, developing themes that are of vital interest to those to whom have been committed the responsibilities and privileges of the superintendency of Sunday schools.

A new member of the Association, who is worthy to be the superintendent of a Sunday school, can hardly miss the fact that here is an organization founded upon permanent factors. It is not a forced affair. There is no evidence of high pressure in the way in which the business is conducted, or in the delightful informality of the friendly gathering, or in the way in which the evening addresses are received.

One member of long standing asked a group of fellow-superintendents what it is that keeps this Association going without the modern high-pressure methods that most organizations seem to need. The answer was not far to seek. The Association was founded with a clear and serious purpose—"The object of this Association shall be to increase the efficiency of the Presbyterian Sunday Schools in Philadelphia," and this purpose has never faded from view, nor has normal interest in it waned.

Let us glance at Mr. Harry Pringle Ford's excellent history of the Association read on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary in the Llanerch Presbyterian Church, Monday evening, April 19, 1920.

"Exactly forty years ago to night, a band of devoted men, all unconscious, perhaps, of the great enterprise upon which they were entering, inaugurated a movement which was destined to have far-reaching results in the betterment of our Sunday schools. Pursuant to the call of a committee, composed of Messrs. John Wanamaker, William Dulles, Jr., Robert H. Hinckley, John L. Davis, J. C. Chance and Robert Curtis Ogden, a social conference of pastors and superintendents, and many ladies, was held in the Assembly Hall of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, at 1334 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

"This meeting was the result of a conference of Sunday School Superintendents held on the evening of March 22, 1880, at the close of another season of the popular Bible Class for teachers and other Sunday School workers which had been conducted by Dr. James A. Worden on Monday evenings during January, February and March for several years, it being felt that the work should have wider usefulness than could possibly result from activities which extended through only three months of the year.

"On the program was printed the following information:

" 'An outgrowth of Rev. James A. Worden's Normal Class was the Superintendents' conference,

March 22, 1880. That meeting indicated the immense spiritual and executive power of the Presbyterian Sunday Schools of Philadelphia. Earnest men, then present, decided that the movement thus begun ought to develop in practical form, and the committee for that meeting was directed to arrange the conference proposed herein. The purpose is to promote spiritual fellowship and power; and to secure a simple organic union of our Sunday schools in this city.'

"The meeting was called to order at 8.30 o'clock by Dr. Worden, who presided at the request of the committee in charge. The hymn, 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds,' was sung, and prayer was offered by Dr. William P. Breed, President of the Board of Publication, and Pastor of the West Spruce Street Church, now the Tenth.

"Mr. Wanamaker, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements, stated that the ultimate object of the meeting was to perfect a simple organization of the Sunday School Superintendents for mutual conference with reference to the general efficiency of the Sunday school work of our denomination in Philadelphia.

"He then presented a number of rules and regulations, which he termed 'Articles of Association,' the second of which was: 'The object of this Association shall be to increase the efficiency of the Presbyterian Sunday Schools in Philadelphia.'

"Those of us who are familiar with the work know how closely the Association has followed this great fundamental plank of its organization, for every meeting has been devoted, in the main, to the consideration of subjects relative to the educational and spiritual development of our superintendents and the very best interests of our schools.

"The meeting was addressed by Dr. Henry Clay Trumbull, Editor of The Sunday School Times, a recognized leader in Sunday school work; and by Dr. Abbott E. Kittridge, Pastor of the Third Church, Chicago, which at that time had a membership of over 1600, with a Sunday school membership of the same size. This will indicate that from the very beginning, our Association commanded, as it has done along the years since, the leading workers of the Sunday school world.

"The meeting night selected, the third Monday of the month, has remained unchanged down to the present.

"A committee to nominate officers, consisting of Dr. Matthew Newkirk, General Louis Wagner, Mr. William Sidebottom and Mr. Joseph Hawley, was appointed. The name of Dr. Worden was presented for the presidency, but he declined. The following nominations were then made and the officers named elected:

"President, John Wanamaker; First Vice-President, John W. Dulles, D.D.; Second Vice-President, Prof. F. W. Hastings; Third Vice-President, Charles H. Biles; Secretary, Robert C. Ogden; Treasurer, John L. Davis."

The original purposes of the founders have been steadily fulfilled in all these years. Superintendents are so conscious of their own needs, and the needs of their scholars, that there is never any difficulty about selecting topics that are of living interest to the Association, and by a constant rotation of members in the executive committee there has been brought to bear upon the making of programs a great variety of ideas emanating from the experience of superintendents of schools large and small in city and country. If any one were inclined to question the interest that exists in Sunday schools in and around Philadelphia, it would only be necessary to refer to the Presbyterian Superintendents' Association with its continuity of interest, and its unforced growth in members and influence to show that the Sunday school interest in this region is enlisting the finest devotion and most intelligent study on the part of representative men of the community.

On two of the preliminary pages of this booklet you will notice the names of the presidents of the Association from the beginning, and also the names of the first members of the Association. The place that the Sunday school holds in the Philadelphia community is reflected by a brief study of these names.

John Wanamaker was the first President of the Association. His unique position in the business world, and in the work of the Sunday school, need no comment here. One evidence, however, of the way in which the Sunday school can lay hold of a man so busy in many affairs is worth noting here, and probably has never appeared in print before. When President Harrison asked Mr. Wanamaker to become a member of his cabinet as Postmaster General, Mr. Wanamaker called into consultation several times while the matter was pending, his old friend Henry Clay Trumbull.

And Dr. Trumbull told the writer of these words that Mr. Wanamaker had decided not to accept President Harrison's invitation unless he could spend his Sundays in Philadelphia in continuation of his work at Bethany Sunday School. It was when President Harrison, himself a Bible Class teacher in his own home city, said that this would be entirely satisfactory, that Mr. Wanamaker accepted the call to this national service. The Sunday school has drawn irresistibly many a man of power to its fruitful service.

A great variety of life-callings is represented among the presidents of the Association. Here you find, among others, the merchant, lawyer, doctor, printer, banker, manufacturer, railroad man, iron master, accountant, broker, publisher, advertising expert, and insurance leader. In the same way one might traverse the list of members, and it would quickly be seen that the solid business and professional life of Philadelphia and its neighborhood is represented in the Association, because the Sunday school demands high executive and spiritual leadership.

The members of our Association have been exceptionally privileged in their contact in these meetings with others who are working out in practical ways the problems of the Sunday school. If it were practicable here to trace the course of the addresses given before the Association across the years, it would be like reading an outline history of the program of the Sunday school in the last fifty years. In the last ten years alone we have had eighty-seven different speakers, and we have met in forty-two different Churches, not including the Orphanage and the Hospital. During the ten years we have not been at the same Church more than once.

It is probable that the members of the Association cannot realize what a wide variety of important subjects have been dealt with, unless a review of the programs should be made. In the last ten years we have had numerous meetings on evangelism in the Sunday school, with definite methods presented before us. We have heard the present-day program of Christian education for the whole Church. By means of lecture, of lantern slides and of moving pictures we have visited Sunday schools the world around. We have been on the trail of the Sunday school missionary, and we have watched the extension of the Sunday school into the daily vacation Bible work with all its wonderful results.

The call of missions has been heard, and with it a discussion of the budget system in Sunday school finance as a means of providing money for that cause and others. We, as superintendents, have not been allowed to forget our responsibility for securing consecrated teachers, for bringing the scholar to Christ; nor have we been allowed to remain in ignorance of the results of Biblical research, when we have heard Dr. Robert Dick Wilson, our greatest Biblical linguist, tell why he believes the Old Testament to be true.

From missionaries in China, Japan, Korea, from missionaries in our southern mountains, and in the West, and from darkest Africa as well, we have heard the story of the carrying of the Gospel to those who sit in darkness.

We have had light from leaders in our public school system, and from the leaders of Christian education in our own Presbyterian communion. Dr. William T. Ellis has brought to us, from his world-wide travels, thrilling first-hand impressions of Bible backgrounds. We have had our round table discussions in which the members of the Association took part keenly and freely in the telling of worth-while experiences in Sunday school work. Have we realized what a wealth of material has come to us during the course of the years, and how much this has entered into our service for the Lord in our places of responsibility?

One of the corporate activities of the Association should be mentioned here: It was at the meeting of November 19, 1888, in the Tabernacle Church that Mr. Samuel G. Scott presented the following resolution which was adopted:

"Resolved, That the Association recommends to the Sunday schools of the Presbyterian Churches in Philadelphia to make a contribution of money or goods to the Presbyterian Orphanage at their approaching Christmas or New Year festival; and that the Corresponding Secretary be instructed to notify the superintendents of the action, and to ask them to report the results at the meeting in January."

In the first year of this interest the schools gave $979.22 in cash, and goods to the amount of $1097.91. Steadily these contributions increased until in the year 1926, $22,453.17 represented the contributions of the schools. (Last year the amount was $18,127.04.) We met for the first time at the Orphanage in November, 1889. In one of our later biennial visits the superintendents had gathered in the chapel of the Orphanage, awaiting the entrance of the children from the various cottages. The youngsters in care of the matrons marched in, and took their places in seats reserved for them. What was transpiring in the minds of these children we did not know, but what one of them was concerned about the writer of these words learned from a matron afterwards, who said to him, with a twinkle in her bright eyes, "Do you know what one of the little boys said as we were marching in? He looked up at me, and said, 'Mrs. Gregory, are all these men going to talk to us?' " Imagine the poor little fellow's state of mind! He had heard many addresses, and he now thought that this was almost too much. Perhaps the lesson may be taken to heart by many a superintendent who is tempted to talk too much from the platform, if indeed there be such a one in this Association!

Another service that the schools have been able to render through the agency of the Association was the raising of some seventeen thousand dollars toward purchasing a lot, and helping to build upon it the First Italian Church at Tenth and Kimball Streets.

No one, however, could appraise, or even name the activities that have centered in the Association, and that have gone out from it in these fifty years of fellowship in service. Hints dropped in conversation around the supper table; gleanings from the addresses of the speakers; points caught in one's note-book during discussions; resolutions never formally entered on the minutes, but entered on the tablets of the heart of many an earnest superintendent—all this and much more can be placed to the credit of the service that the Association has rendered. Under the good hand of God we have lived and prospered. Our average attendance since October, 1929, has been 169. In His providence leaders have been raised up to meet the needs of the Association, and today our membership of 435 men who have been, or are now, active in the work of the superintendent represents no less than 144 Sunday schools. Not many of us here present will be permitted to live another fifty years, but we believe that in the providence of God this Association will survive and that its vitality will increase with the years in accordance with its adaptability to the ever-growing needs of the Sunday school. We thank God and take courage at this half-century milestone.
